The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2 and 5-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Teranishi (U.S. Patent No. 4,622,142) or Yanagihara (U.S. Patent No. 4,660,393) in view of Knauf et al. (U.S. Patent No. 5,510,031). Teranishi and Yanagihara disclose water filtration devices for a clothes washing machine, which devices include a housing defining a filtration chamber, and a replaceable filter cartridge in this chamber. Accordingly, each of these primary references discloses the claimed invention with the exception of the dual filtration chamber and the separate hot and cold water inlets and outlets. Knauf et al. discloses a water filter, and teaches providing separate inlets to the filter for hot and cold water (see Fig. 3 and col. 3, lines 11-19). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the filtration device of either Teranishi or Yanagihara with separate inlets for hot and cold water, as well as separate outlets and filtration chambers for hot and cold water, in order to better control the filtration of the water supplied to the washing machine in either of these primary reference systems. Such modification is deemed to be obvious since washing machines typically include cycles which utilize only hot water, or only cold water, to wash clothing; and therefore, such separate hot and cold water inlets, outlets and filtration chambers would be capable of ensuring that the water delivered to the washing tub is adequately purified.

Claims 3, 4 and 8-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Teranishi or Yanagihara in view of Knauf et al. as applied above, and further in view of Poirier

(U.S. Patent No. 6,337,015). Each of the modified primary references discloses the claimed invention with the exception of the recited filtration materials (claims 3, 4 and 11-13) and mounting means (claims 8-10). Poirier discloses a filter for an appliance, and teaches the recited filtration materials (see col. 8, lines 13-18) and mounting means (see col. 6, lines 21-37). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to substitute the filtration device of Poirier for the filtration device of either modified primary reference, since the filtration device of Poirier is capable of filtering water in substantially the same manner as the filtration device of either modified primary reference, to produce substantially the same results. Also, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to mount this filtration device to the washing machine of either modified primary reference in the manner taught by Poirier, in order to facilitate the installation and maintenance of this filtration device.
